A Much Debated Consensus: Media Literacy in Israel

Published 2001 / 2018 • Media Literacy Around the World, pp. 213–228

ACADEMIC CITATION (APA)

Lemish, P. (2001/2018). A much debated consensus: Media literacy in Israel. In Media Literacy Around the World (pp. 213-228).

ABSTRACT & RESEARCH CONTEXT

A foundational study tracing the emergence, political debates, and institutional adoption of media literacy education in Israel. It evaluates how critical media pedagogy was introduced into school curricula to empower students to interrogate media representations and participate in democratic life.

KEY FINDINGS & THEORETICAL CONTRIBUTION

The study reveals the creative tension between official state curricular aims (which sought patriotic consensus) and critical media education (which trains youth to deconstruct media power, bias, and structural exclusion).

ARCHIVE LOCATION & REPOSITORY ACCESS

Author:	Dr. Peter Lemish
Publication ID:	pub-5
Document Type:	Archival Peer-Reviewed Scholarly Brief / Full Analysis
Digital Archive:	Dr. Peter Lemish Living Digital Archive (https://peter-lemish-archive.vercel.app)
NotebookLM Source:	https://notebook.google.com/notebook/b5f6877e-c233-44d3-966a-ff6ee36344fa