Lemish, P., & Feldash, D. (1997). Exposing social problems by means of critical pedagogy. Radical Teacher / Studies in Education, 129-140.

ABSTRACT & RESEARCH CONTEXT

Examines classroom methodologies for teacher educators to uncover structural inequalities, socio-economic marginalization, and institutional biases through reflective and problem-posing classroom discussions.

KEY FINDINGS & THEORETICAL CONTRIBUTION

Demonstrates that teaching cannot be politically neutral; educators who adopt critical pedagogy empower pupils to interrogate their social realities and become agents of community transformation.
